

Confirming what your team quotes

Delta Rentals — what your own chats already answer, and the few things they do not

23 August 2026

Your website publishes the car, the daily price, the photos and 250 km a day. Everything else we needed was missing from it — but most of it turned up in the twelve conversations you sent, quoted to real customers by your own team.

So this is not a form asking you to look things up. It is a list of what we found, for you to confirm or correct. Where your chats and your website disagree, we have shown both, because the assistant can only state one of them.

How to reply: a number and a word is plenty — "1: yes / 4: it's 25 now". If something is right, say so and we will encode it.

1 — The no-deposit option

Your website advertises "no deposit required (T&Cs apply)" and never states what it costs. Your team quotes it constantly:

- AED 500 + VAT on most cars, non-refundable
- AED 650 + VAT on some
- AED 350 + VAT once, described as "spoke to management"
- AED 1,000 + VAT for a twenty-day rental

1. Is AED 500 + VAT the standard, with 650 for the higher classes? _____
2. Which cars are the higher ones? _____
3. Does it scale with duration — and is the twenty-day figure a rule or a one-off? _____
4. May the assistant quote it directly, or does every no-deposit request go to a person?

2 — Deposit and the hold

Your team is consistent: AED 5,000, held 28 working days, payable by cash, card or crypto, plus a AED 50–100 pre-authorisation at delivery refunded within 21 days.

Your terms say the deposit ranges AED 5,000–20,000, and section 3.2 says it is held for 30 days rather than 28.

5. Is AED 5,000 the deposit on every car, or does it rise on the top vehicles? If it rises, on which and to what? _____
6. 28 working days or 30 days? _____
7. Is the pre-authorisation AED 50, AED 100, or does it vary? _____

3 — Kilometres

250 km a day is on every listing and every chat, and your team explains it as a pooled allowance — five days gives 1,250 km to use whenever, and a half-day booking gives 125 km. We have encoded it that way.

The rate beyond it is where the numbers diverge. Your team quoted AED 15 per extra km to one customer and AED 25 to another. Your terms say the range is AED 25–150.

8. What is the extra-km rate by class? Economy/sedan _____ · SUV/luxury _____ · Sports _____ · Supercar _____
9. Is AED 15 a mistake, a special, or the real rate on some cars? _____

4 — Insurance excess

Your team tells customers the excess starts from AED 3,500. Your terms say from AED 5,000. Both add a minimum 20% of the damage cost.

10. Which figure is current? _____

11. Does it differ by class, and if so what are the floors? _____

5 — What the assistant may offer without asking

Every discount in your chats is framed the same way — "with management approval", "a special offer for this booking only", "as per management, cost price for you". Never as a standing rate. That is exactly right, and it is how the assistant is built: an override for one customer, never a new price list.

Which leaves the question of what it may do alone. Today every price request goes to a person, which is safe and will exhaust you within a week.

12. May it offer a discount without asking? Up to what percentage? _____

13. Is there a longer-rental discount it may apply automatically — and are multi-day prices like "AED 15,000 for 5 days" negotiated each time, or is there a ladder? _____

14. Above what percentage must it always come to you? _____

6 — Delivery

Free delivery anywhere in Dubai, 9 AM to 10 PM. Confirmed in both your terms and your chats, and encoded. Out of hours is AED 200 per your terms.

15. Sharjah — free, or AED _____

16. Abu Dhabi — free, or AED _____

17. Beyond 30 km of your base, your terms say "charged upon agreement". Is there a rate, or does every one of those come to a person? _____

7 — Cancellation and changes

Your terms give a 72-hour window and also say services are non-refundable and cannot be cancelled. Your team told a customer that same-day changes are non-refundable, including reductions and on-the-spot cancellations, and separately offered a refund if a customer is unhappy with the car at handover.

18. What is the real cancellation rule? _____

19. Is the at-handover refund a standing promise the assistant may make, or a judgement call for a person? _____

8 — Payment

Your chats show card, cash, crypto and bank transfer, prices quoted plus VAT, and a AED 500 holding payment (once USD 300) to secure a booking against the invoice.

20. Is the AED 500 hold standard, and refundable if they cancel in time? _____

21. Should the assistant quote prices excluding VAT the way your team does, or all-in?

22. Do you want it to send a payment link, or keep taking payment the way you do now?

9 — Availability — still the one nobody can answer

Nothing on your website and nothing in the chats tells us which cars are free on which dates. Your team checks and comes back — "please allow me a moment to check" — which means it is somewhere we cannot see.

23. Where is that checked — a system, a sheet, a whiteboard? _____

24. Can we read from it, or receive it daily? _____

25. Until then, should the assistant treat every booking as a request your team confirms, rather than telling the customer it is confirmed? _____

10 — Which agreement is current

Your terms page carries two rental agreements. The numbered one at the top and an older set below it disagree on about twelve figures — 120 km/h against 160, extra kilometres 25–150 against 25–50, a claims window of five years against one, deposit release 30 days against 28.

We have built to the numbered agreement.

26. Is that the current one, and should the older section come down? _____

One of your own customers wrote: "I was reading your website and 2 questions popped up, it mentions a 200 AED for pickup after hours and a security deposit from 5000 to 2000. Do we have to pay both these fees extra too?" — and asked again later about the same deposit. Whatever the assistant does, that page is costing your team time today.

11 — Who the assistant asks

27. Which number should it message when something is outside its rules? _____

28. What hours is that person realistically reachable? _____

29. If nobody is available at 2 AM, what should the customer be told? _____

Anything left blank stays blank in the assistant — it will say "the team will confirm that" rather than guess. That is the safe failure, and it is also a slower sale every time, so the more of these that come back, the more it closes on its own.